New Fellow Brings Invaluable Experience to ICCPM Network

11 January 2019

In recognition of individual excellence in Complex Project Management, ICCPM's Fellow Program makes special acknowledgement to highly credible and successful Project and Program Managers with proven track records in the field of Complexity in Project Management and who are leaders in their field.

Bob Laslett, CEng has 45 years' experience managing major complex capital projects around the world, including Europe, the Middle East, Far East, Russia/CIS, North & South America and Africa, and is currently Managing Director of Laslett International Limited.

Based in the UK, Bob has extensive experience across a variety of sectors including, energy, renewables, petrochemicals, offshore oil/gas, shipbuilding, technology and infrastructure, leading major international Merger & Acquisition projects. Continuous successful project delivery has earned him a highly regarded reputation in project management that has led to many appointments as an Expert Witness on major complex dispute cases and ad hoc Arbitrations and Mediations.

ICCPM CEO Collin Smith welcomed Bob's Fellowship appointment, "Bob brings with him a wealth of complex project management expertise and knowledge founded on an impressive breadth of experience globally and across sectors. We look forward to the contributions he can make to our organisation, sharing invaluable insights with our community."

"As I have been involved in many global complex projects, I recognize the importance of such an organisation as ICCPM and aspire to become a Fellow. Today's challenging environment means we have to cope with external political and social factors which can be difficult to manage and control, but which also have inconsistent effects on the project objective and goal. Managing and maintaining on track projects under these conditions not only requires experience and expertise, but the use of tools, systems and soft skills to ensure successful project delivery. A strong advocate of professional project management, I look forward to sharing my insights and contributing to the ICCPM network toward enabling success in complex environments."

Bob Laslett, incoming ICCPM Fellow 2019.
